FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 2012
9:00 am - 2:00 pm

(Continental breakfast at 8:30am)

Creveling Lounge, Pasadena City College

Come and participate in an action-oriented professional development day.

"Working Together on the Student Success Pipeline" is an opportunity to learn and share the work that 7th-12th grade and community college educators are doing around pre-collegiate exposure to career exploration and the critical partnerships that are supporting this work. The day will feature educators who are at the frontlines of school-based and workforce preparation for underprepared students, especially those with language barriers, from high poverty communities, from the foster care system, and with learning disabilities—all groups who have unacceptably low rates of success in post-secondary education. Participants will learn about programs and approaches in innovative instruction, pathway design, and intentional employer engagement that work to prepare students for college and career, as well as the challenges of institutional coordination. We will round out the day with an interactive session in which participants develop action plans to move this work forward.

Workshop Facilitators:

Sherry Suisman, Senior Program Associate, Career Ladders Project
Veronica Sanchez-Casian, Senior Program Associate, Career Ladders Project
Robert Jaurequi, Senior Field Consultant, Career Ladders Project
Luis Chavez, Senior Director of Program and Policy, Career Ladders Project
Theresa Reed, Educational Advisor, Pasadena City College, and Program Director for the Foster/Kinship Care Education and Independent Living Programs at Pasadena City College
